

NeuroEndocrine
Cancer Australia

NeuroEndocrine Cancer Australia

Tasmania Overview

Tasmania

In Tas alone our NET patients make up 6% of all calls to the specialist NET Nurse line, making 324 contacts in the last year alone

”

"I found the NET Nurse Service incredibly helpful. The support was prompt, reassuring, and very informative during a time when everything felt overwhelming. I appreciated the clarity of the explanations, the compassionate approach, and the resources provided, especially the list of specialists and the suggested questions to ask my doctors. The service has been professional, warm, and genuinely supportive. Thank you for the guidance and care."

— NET patient

Support

Education

Research

Awareness

Advocacy

Lauren, Tasmania (TAS)

Lauren spent years seeking answers for unexplained symptoms before eventually receiving a NET diagnosis that changed her life. She now speaks openly about the lack of specialist support in Tasmania and why a dedicated NET nurse is urgently needed.

Lauren's Story.

” The hardest part is knowing that if I had a different type of bowel cancer, these same treatments would be fully funded by the Australian government.

—Lauren Rayner (North West Coast)

Support

Education

Research

Awareness

Advocacy