

Questions to ask

NeuroEndocrine
Cancer Australia

It can be difficult to know what questions to ask at an appointment with a medical specialist.

Asking questions will help you understand more about your type of neuroendocrine cancer and how and why decisions about treatment are made.

It is ok if you don't know where to start. This fact sheet can help guide you.

General Neuroendocrine Cancer questions

- What type of NET do I have?
- Where in the body is the NET located? Has it spread to other parts of the body? If it has spread, where has it spread to?
- What are the risk factors for NETs?
- Are you a NET Specialist? How many NET patients do you treat a year?
- Are you able to discuss my case with or refer me to a NET Specialist?
- Are you involved with or have access to a NET Multidisciplinary team?

Diagnosis, tests, and investigations

- What can the biopsy/surgery histopathology report (the description of neuroendocrine cancer as it looks under a microscope) tell us?
- Did an experienced pathologist who understands NETs review the tumour?
- What tests do I need to have? Refer to the optimal care pathway for people with NETs for specific investigations related to the NET location.

Grading and staging

- What is the grade of my NET (the description of the NET when looked at under a microscope)? What does this mean?
- What is the stage of my NET? What does this mean?

- Based on my grade and stage, what is my likely prognosis?
- What is Ki 67 % and what does it mean?

Treatment and management of NETs

- What are my treatment options?
- What is the treatment called and how does it work?
- Why is this treatment recommended?
- What is the goal of treatment? Is it to remove the cancer completely, to control the cancer, to manage the cancer symptoms?
- How soon do I need to commence treatment; urgently, semi urgently, non-urgent?
- How often do I need this treatment? (Treatment schedule)
- Will the treatment reduce my NET symptoms?
- Can I have written information about my treatment?
- Is there a home support program for this treatment, so I can have this at (or closer to) home?
- Where will I have my treatment? How long will it take (short appointment, day stay, overnight)?
- What are the side effects or risks (short term and long term) of this treatment?
- How can I best prepare myself for this treatment?
- What should I avoid or not do while having this treatment?
- How will this treatment affect my daily life? Will I be able to work, exercise and do my usual activities?
- Can I have a holiday while on treatment? Can I travel internationally while on treatment?
